About this Report

The National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) and its member colleges have undertaken the First-Destination Survey initiative, which will provide the profession with its first graduate outcomes based on common standards and protocols.

The data gathered will support the individual needs of member schools to provide reliable outcomes information to their stakeholders and accrediting bodies, and will enable the professional community to track trends and inform the public policy debate on the value of higher education.

Data for this report was obtained through an on-line survey conducted October—December, 2014.
